At the time of accident, patient was standing nearby and witnessed the accident. For last 5 months, he has been having symptoms of sadness of mood, crying spells, feelings of wohlessness, poor sleep and poor appetite. He has twice thought of killing himself but stopped at the end moment. He has not been attending the office of last 5 months. What is the likely diagnosis:Answer Choices:A. Post traumatic stress disorderB. Normal griefC. Major depressionD. Adjustment disorder

Reasoning + Answer:

<think>male patient is 30 years of age, his 3 year old child died of being hit by a car, he has troubles sleeping, within ability to lose weight, and feeling of hopelessness this matches upto major depression, it is a kind of clinical depression in which a person often become impaired in functioning then normal grief is 2 months, the man been suffering for 5 months, more than 2 months it is totally not an adjustment disorder, a patient with adjustment disorder have no troubles with sleep and absence of suicidal thoughts PTSD will start showing symptoms within 30 days of trauma, male is 5 months after trauma, it will not match with the symptom</think><answer>C. Major depression</answer>
