

Question:

A 20-year-old male presented with high-grade fever, groin pain and a swollen scrotum for 1 week and are worsening progressively. On examination, Tender inguinal lymphadenopathy Scrotal swelling with hydrocoele Lymphatic streaking Blood samples are taken and a parasite infection is suspected. Which of the following is the most likely organism: -Answer Choices:A. B. C. D.

Reasoning + Answer:

<think> the possibility of a patient having filarial worms as it is spreading in an increasing trend his fever can be bacterial infection or filarial which is plasma examination can be done which shows bacteria, causative organisms are round shape, have proteic filarioid and are filamentous options are A.  B.  C.  D.  B.

