

Question:

A mental health volunteer is interviewing locals as part of a community outreach program. A 46-year-old man discloses that he has felt sad for as long as he can remember. He feels as though his life is cursed and if something terrible can happen to him, it usually will. He has difficulty making decisions and feels hopeless. He also feels that he has had worsening suicidal ideations, guilt from past problems, energy, and concentration over the past 2 weeks. He is otherwise getting enough sleep and able to hold a job. Which of the following statement best describes this patient's condition?

Answer Choices:

- A. The patient is at risk for double depression.
- B. The patient may have symptoms of mania or psychosis.
- C. The patient is likely to show anhedonia.
- D. The patient likely has paranoid personality disorder.

Reasoning + Answer:

<think> The patient has had chronic depression and now has on top of that developed depression from a recent stressful event and is also showing some physical and emotional symptoms of depression and depression that is accompanied by a long history of depression is called double depression which is a combination of chronic depression and a recurrent major depression triggered by a new stressor in the patient's life and the patient's symptoms fit the diagnosis of double depression

</think>

<answer> A. The patient is at risk for double depression.</answer>
